

DITCHLING
MUSEUM OF ART+
CRAFT

CREATIVE LETTERING 2017

The playful, bright wooden signpost proudly positioned outside the school entrance and the accompanying signs dotted around the school were created by every pupil in a project with Ditchling Museum of Art + Craft, lead by artist Lauren Baxter. The project celebrates and combines the tradition of signage around Ditchling and the sans-serif typeface (Johnston Sans) designed by Edward Johnston for the London underground in 1916 when he lived in Ditchling. The signs display the school's Christian values and its vision statement. Throughout a series of workshops the pupils explored typography and design in drawing, painting and 3D processes.

This project was made possible by a kind and generous donation from Mike and Pam Burr.

